HAMMOND HIGH SCHOOL

Foreword

HEREWITH is presented the Dunes for 1924. That it may, in some small measure, be worthy of its name, and, in the future, serve as a treasure house of the traditions and memories of our high school, is the wish of the editors and the staff.

Dedicated

to that vast wonderland of the Middle West

The Dunes

which have been a joy and inspiration to those who know and love them.

The Spirit of the Dunes

---

*I saw her, stark on the headland,
Her dripping limbs were bare,
Dry grasses were in her fingers
And sand in her floating hair.*

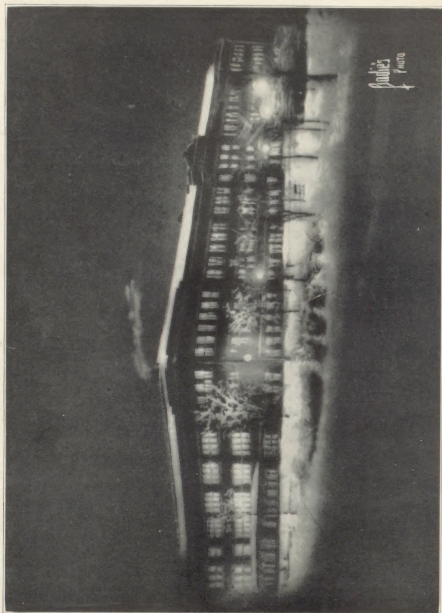

*She beckoned, and smiled at me wanly,
Till my heart leaped in my breast,
And I longed, o'er the sand hills to follow
The lure of her magical quest.*

*Her voice was as low as the music
Of the Lake, when she softly croons,
But my inmost soul heard her calling—
The Spirit of the Dunes.*

Senior Class Song

(Melody in F.)

MARY CHRISTOPHER

Day of Commencement, to us day of days,
Time beckons on to life's future ways,
And to us, twenty-four, you will be
Symbol of loyalty.

North, South, or East, or under Western skies
There's a love for you, twenty-four, that never dies.
May we bring to you honor and fame,
And time erase not from our roll one dear name.

So as we stand at life's open door,
We sing to you, old twenty-four
Praises and honor to you evermore,
Nineteen twenty-four!

The Class of '24

By LOUISE RAMSEY

Whan that September with his school dayes y-starte,
And Summer is y-past, students y-darte
Back to the school from which they y-came,
The school of Hammond High, by righte name,
Then 'twas, indeede, the yonge Freshman classe—
Y-scared they were, and green as any grasse—
That entered first this school in 1920,
To start its struggles full of bumpes plenty.
Y-true, they were only newe at the job-e,
But the class was always brave—not one y-sobe.
They dug right in and spent all that yeare
Pulling and tugging at learned books. Now heare
What they did whan Sophomore dayes y-came.
Pedagogues y-starte to make them tame;
But pep they had, and still y-claime it,
E'en whan that they in hott y-grade robes do sitt.
In 1921, its second yeare,
Whan that their brains were grown somewhat y-cleare,
Officoures they y-chose y-welle—
Just howe good, their work alone can telle.
Then came the year of 1922.
Oh what great deedes they y-pñan to do!
What wonder plans were then y-made!
And in the end it surely them y-paide,
For look you at the worthy classe now,
Where wisdom sits on every Senior's brow.
In this Sophomore yeare, society events y-starte.
Sophomore Hoppe was our firste parte.
And then this yeare came our water gunne
That kept every one right well upon the runne,
Down the hall in old assembly five,
Where every one to study was y-drive,
Water gunns y-squirted here and there,
And soaked damsels' color and their hair.
But that indeede was only harmless pep,

The same it was that we four years have kept.
And whan it was that we were Juniors alle
And when our president y-chosen was, y-talle,
Then it was dramatics 'gan us calle.
"Seventeen" we played to big and smalle.
And each one laughed and clapped while we played,
And muche was the money that we made.
Ah yes, and cande was y-sold at games,
This yeare by fair and pretty Junior dames,
And money in our coffers kept y-growing,
Just as, indeede, we wished it to be doing.
And whan reception time drewe near,
The Seniors never had no jot of feare
That they would not y-have the beste
Time they ever hadde, not one suggeste
That they might help us, somedel, in our work
For well they knew the Juniors'd never shirk.
The Reception was indeede, a great success,
Every one, even we that much confess.
Than whan we have our course three years y-runne,
We have at last our Senior state bigonne.
During this Senior year we have y-proved
To our Alumni that we hotely loved
To have hem come to dance and play games too
With us sometime, just as they used to do
In dayes whan they were studes in Hammond High,
Before they had y-grad and said gooybye.
Many schoole hues that night were worn;
Embrouded coat and dress we did adorn
With buttons that we Seniors wise y-solde—
The rest's a secret that we can't unfold.
And whan our classe looks back upon this yeare,
We seem indeede to holde our school more deare!
Just to say that we were seniors whan
Our Hammond High School team beat Emerson!
And sundry other wondrous thinges bifell,
That I would like—but have to time—to tell.
And now we hasten forward to the daye
Of graduation. There is namore to saye.

Junior Officers

MISS FINNEGAN, Faculty Advisor

The Junior Class discovered an excellent advisor in Miss Finnegan. It was to her that we all rushed when any dilemma confronted us, and we were always rewarded with a satisfactory solution to our problems.

JAMES SHARP, President

To find a more capable leader than Jimmy would be next to the impossible. The Class of '25 owes much of its success to him.

HELEN KLEIN, Vice President

She's little—but an efficient assistant, nevertheless. In the absence of our president, Helen was always "Johnny-on-the-spot."

BERDIE VIVIAN, Secretary

Not even the smallest detail slipped the eye of our ever-on-the-alert secretary. Did we ever catch Berdie asleep at the job?—I guess not.

MARGARET HOWE, Treasurer

We were fortunate indeed in having such a competent guard over our precious shekels. Willing and capable—that's Margaret.

Being the Strange Historie offe the Adventures offe the Class offe '25

By MARGARET BARROWS

THIS beeing the first daie offe the newe Year, the Yeare offe our Lorde 1924, I sitte down to write the Historie offe the brave band of Freshmen who did on the first daie offe September, two years past, set out to explore a land bounteous with Hope and the Promise of Learninge.

It was with trembling Hands and fearful Hearts that we set out to discover this newe land, and fore several daies, we did wander about finding the location of divers Rooms. Once we did, indeede, find ourselves in the Wrong Place, and the natives did laugh long and wildlie.

To Miss Harvey much credit belongs that we did emerge safely from the Wildes offe this newe Experience. She did band us together and she did indeede call us "The Ace of Clubs." At the head offe this band Catherine Walker was placed; Virginia See was ye Scribe; while Marcus Donaldson we did indeede trust with the bounteous Coin which our verie brave band did possess. George Kuhn did become ye scribe for the newspaper, for which we were verie pleased. This merrie little band did give a Partie in honor offe the Saint Patricke. The whole School did disport themselves most joyfullie, playing frolicsome Games, and indeede dancing some.

During the Passage offe the next Year, we did continue our Work and our good Times, and we did congratulate ourselves that we, The Sophomores, were indeede the most important class in the high school. It seemed passing strange that divers other students, namely the Seniors, did think themselves more superior; but we, indeede, knewe best. We had good reason to be proud. Catherine Walker was given the principal part in the play "Seventeen," while Kathryn McCartin did become chief Editor offe the High School Paper.

But to continue this Discourse, you will know that at this time Berdie Vivian was the leader offe our class, while Miss Miller did offer wondrous Advice. The Sophomores did have one week offe their own, in which bothe the Natives offe the school, and the Strangers who had just arrived, learned how joyous we were. The week, November 13-18, did end with a righte magnificent Partie, which will indeede be long remembered.

You shall understand that we are now Juniors, and that James Sharp has become President. Berdie Vivian does most energetically endeavor to keep the Journals offe our manifold doings, while Margaret Howe is indeede Treasurer. We are indeede much older and wiser and we do plan to do many wondrous things. The Junior-Senior reception will surely be big and marvelous.

During the passage offe another cycle offe Tyme, we will be lordlie Seniors about to pass to higher Worlds to conquer, well freighted down with Knowledge and congratulating ourselves on our safe Deliverance from the Perils offe this most strange Land.

Sophomore Officers

MISS HOTCHKISS, *Faculty Advisor

Through the efforts of its capable advisor, Miss Hotchkiss, the Sophomores have become a live-wire class. Her cheery smile has won for her admission to the heart of every Sophomore.

ARNOLD SCHULTE, *President

How could the Sophomore year of the Class of '26 have been other than successful with Arnold as its president? The Sophs have found in him a real, peppy leader.

HAZEL LOCKWOOD, *Vice President

Hazel took advantage of every opportunity offered her and proved to her fellow classmates what real executive ability she has.

VERN GORDON, *Secretary

With his ever ready pen, Vern kept the records. It was no easy job, we assure you, for things kept happening, right along.

GAIL WILSON, *Treasurer

"Paid your dues yet?" The Sophs soon learned that if they didn't intend to pay their dues, they'd better keep out of Gail's way. She was an earnest worker, with the welfare of her class at heart.

FLORENCE GOSTLIN, *Sergeant-at-Arms

The presence of a law-enforcing officer seemed to be an essential. This office was wisely awarded to Florence Gostlin, who without much difficulty kept order at Sophomore meetings. Not that the Sophs are rowdy—far from it.

The Class of 1926

The sophomore class, two hundred strong—
A lively, jolly crowd,
Boisterous,
But good-natured.
They push and jostle in the halls,
Yet you ought to see them at the games
Cheering,
Helping the teams win.
School loyalty personified!
They won't pay their class dues
Tho' they eat heartily at class meetings.
They elect the littlest girl sergeant-at-arms.
Their president wears long trousers
And thinks he's grown up.
Only one class officer ever comes to meetings.
The class secretary
Plays the cymbals and
Leads the cheers.
It is a jolly class.
1926
Here's to you!

The Freshman's Dream

I'm just a little Freshman,
I must be very small,
For when I meet the Seniors,
They don't see me at all.

High School is a great big world
In which I'm just a speck;
But just wait a year or so,
I'll show them I'm on deck.

Each year, I'll grow a foot or more,
And so much knowledge gain,
They'll say when I'm a Senior,
I've enlargement of the brain.

Then when I wander through the hall
And gaze upon a Freshman small,
I'll grasp his trembling hand and say,
"You may be as wise as I some day."

The High School Melting Pot

IN his play, "The Melting Pot," Israel Zangwill expresses the key note of Americanism—a common love of humanity that reduces all racial differences and denominational creeds to one common level of brotherhood. In its artistic setting the play stirs our patriotism. We see implacable revenge transformed in the melting pot into love, class barriers melted, and a purpose too big for pettiness take their place. Israel Zangwill's play is a beautiful piece of fiction; but its theme is as true as nature itself.

Our own high school is a melting pot. Indeed, that is one of its distinguishing features. From thirty different nationalities come the students of the Hammond High School, French, Irish, Scotch, Polish, Dutch, Italian, English, and many others, each with his own customs, background, and ideals. Upon the school falls the great task of making true American men and women of them to be sent into the world.

As each enters High School, he looks about him and says, "What a lot of foreigners!" Soon, however, racial differences dissolve, and we find an Irishman president of the Dramatic Club, a Swede for the secretary, and a Hebrew as treasurer; or a Frenchman for Senior president, with perhaps an Englishman and a German working with him. Through the democratic rubbing of shoulders, denominational differences, racial customs and class distinction disappear, leaving in their place the foundation of Americanism, Democracy.

Just as, under the force of the wind and the rain, the shifting sands of the Dunes change from year to year, so, by means of the influences at work in the High School melting pot, our individual pupils are transformed into real American men and women.

MARY CHRISTOPHER.

Endless stretch of glistening
 sands
 Rose tints melt into the night
 Silent solitudes and God shadowy clouds and waning light.
 Moonbeams shimmer in the dusk
 Silvery wan across the turf
 Tree tops quiver in the wind
 Softly booms the moonlit surf.

Margaret Barrows.

The Siege Perilous

By ROBERT LYONS

IN a remote and peaceful wonderland that is far, far away there is a fascinating city of delight. Its welcoming gates eternally open and its mansions are filled with a variety of riches. Well-nigh impassable barriers have eternally guarded its sanctity, and the rocky way and stormy steep that lead to it are marked with the time-worn footprints of plodding pilgrims who have laboriously sought this enchanted city. Plucky bands of wayfarers all, they have searched for it in vain; and then, disheartened, have fallen by the wayside ere their goal was won. But a fortunate few have found it and their reward has been a wealth of happiness and their every wish has been fulfilled. And this city whereof I speak was named by men the City of Knowledge.

Now on a warm Spring evening in the year 1924 Anno Domini two great armies lay encamped on a wide-spread plain before the City. The one was a bedraggled host of battle-scarred warriors, veterans of a four-year campaign, who were now on the eve of their last great conflict. Need I name them, my reader? They were the Class of '24. And across the expanse of plain one could discern the enemy—a feared horde of merciless guardsmen—who had worried and vexed our Seniors these last four years. These last were known to men as The Legions of Learning.

In the dying twilight the opposing camps presented a marked contrast. In fearful silence did the Seniors repose with a quiet born of dread. Perhaps they prayed. But as the dark night of Ignorance descended, all sounds ceased within their camp. Not so the Legionaries, however, whose ribald rejoicings and dire threats broke the peaceful quiet of the evening.

But soon the silence of the night remained undisturbed save for the fitful calls of watchful sentries. With the morning's first gleam, however, came preparations for the imminent battle. Pencils were sharpened and fountain pens cleaned; reserve supplies of paper were moved to the front and emergency rations of erasers were dealt out. Gradually, however, order replaced confusion and the two Armies now lay, like grim dogs of war, awaiting the onslaught.

As the Seniors surveyed their foes, their hearts were filled with apprehension. There lay the Enemy, with the French and English holding the right wing; Science, Mathematics and History the center, and Latin and Domestic Science in the left wing. The burnished steel of their questions shone in the sunshine, and their white and yellow admits were a pretty sight to see.

Now, on the hillsides surrounding the battlefield were gathered timor-ous Freshmen, egotistical Sophmores, and arrogant Juniors, who had come from long distances to witness the fray. And during the ensuing battle, to their everlasting discredit, I declare that they cheered Learning's soldiers right lustily and merrily, at every new disaster that they joyfully inflicted on our long-suffering Seniors.

Suddenly the still silence of the morning was broken by a terrific barrage of test-tubes laid down by the enemy's artillery — Chemistry. Our Seniors withstood this first assault quite bravely, although they wept abundantly because the tubes were filled with tear gas. Then the English and French advanced, uttering fiendish yells, and the entire front blazed with spitting paperwads and squirting fountain pens. And in perfect order the rest of the line came up and the enemies engaged in a fierce struggle.

At Senior Headquarters all was confusion. Dick Winckler dashed up, mounted on a hobby horse and spattered with ink to report that the right wing was giving way, the center holding, the left advancing. Russel Wolf demanded more pencils. "Would they never send those notebooks!" entreated Walter Hammond despairingly.

Along the far flung battle line the Seniors were slowly falling back. Their ever-sharps grew hot, shooting dumb-dumb bullets. Yet all to no avail. The Mathematics division of the enemy, lay hidden behind a clump of test-papers and were wounding many a Senior with rapid-fire propositions. History's men, fighting like fiends, played havoc with the center, using a hand grenade, which, when exploded, sent forth the question, "Who was Euripides?" Ah, my reader, many a student was cut down that day, and lay covered with chalk, murmuring dazedly, "Who the dickens WAS Euripides?"

And at each new defeat administered our Seniors, the onlookers on the hillsides went wild with glee. The Seniors were in headlong flight? Hooray! "No quarter," they shrilled to the Legionaries and prayed to high heaven that the orderly retreat would become a rout. Raymond Young fled by, holding fast to a drum and just one jump ahead of a Legionary's bayonet, and the pitiful sight convulsed the Juniors, who rolled in wild merriment on the ground, holding their aching sides. All were agreed that they were having the time of their lives and uproariously applauded the news of each new Senior reverse.

Many were the feats of heroism that dark day. Marjorie Beebe forsook her works of mercy, and like a modern Molly Pitcher, seized a blotter. But to no avail. As she poised her blood-thirsty weapon above her head, she was felled by a blue card, and lay covered by the fallen leaves of a loose-leaf notebook.

It grieves me to relate that, under the ceaseless hammering, the Senior line wavered—broke—and then fled in stark terror, like dust before the wind.

And the watchers on the hillsides went insane with delight!

But as the broken remnants of the Senior army escaped in confusion, hotly pursued by the Legionaries, they were met by a small band of determined maidens, who had deserted their works of mercy, commandeered compacts, and with bobbed-hair flying, and grasping powder puffs, were now advancing to the fray. Fighting females they were, who, during the early battle had ministered to the wounded but had now taken arms and were advancing. Their appearance had a miraculous effect on the terror-stricken Seniors. Their line of battle stopped its flight, and stubbornly contested every foot of ground.

"Hurrah for the Amazons!" was on every lip. Furies of vengeance they seemed, flaming angels of victory, and led by Violet Nichols and Marguerite Brennan, swiftly and suddenly did they wreak their wrath on the luckless Legionaries. They took Domestic Science like Sherman took Atlanta. History and French—every regiment—were swept aside before the fury of their avenging swords. The English gallantly charged against them, risking all in one last desperate attempt. "Don't fire until you see the whites of their i's," screamed Mary Christopher, and volley after volley cut down the English as grain is cut by the reaper.

What little more is there to tell? How the Amazons led the Seniors to glorious victory and pursued the Legions of Learning into kingdom come? How the Seniors, with battle flags waving, proudly entered the City of Knowledge and claimed it for their very own? And yet there is one event that I know will serve as a fitting aftermath to that epoch-making conflict and it is this: When the Legionaries had stopped running, they suddenly spied the onlookers on the hillside. These dastardly renegades, ever as fickle as weathervanes, had, when the Senior victory seemed certain, applauded with vociferous gusto their every move. "Up and at 'em Seniors," they cried. "We're behind you—way behind." Now they were engaged in a great celebration to commemorate the Senior triumph—but alas, their glee was to be soon ended. For their unholy revelry was broken up, when at its most joyful height, by the avenging descent of the Legionaries who fell on the luckless celebrants and sent them scurrying in ignominious flight. And as I last saw them they were fleeing over the hills and far away with the grim bayonets of Learning's soldiers following close behind. And though it pains me to relate this, I am told that some of them—poor things—were hunted and harried for three years or more.

And it is only fitting and proper that I proclaim that while walking one day on that strife-torn field on the Plains of the City of Knowledge, I discovered that the ammunition used by Learning's Legionaries was all blank cartridges, which might disable but never destroy.

And so this Illiad shall end here, with but just meed of praise to where all praise is due—The Senior Class of '24.

Moon-Madness

Like a white phantom sweeping through the sky
Glides the silver empress of the night;
All around about her the virgin maidens lie,
Symbols of love, of fantasy, of light.

Queen of the night! Beneath whose silvery glow
Young men are joyous, the old forget their woe,
Maidens are enraptured by the beauteous sight,
When thy glory is upon them—Queen of Night!

Model for the artist's brush, theme for poet's pen,
Thou sheddest beauty o'er hill and glen;
Knowing not the powers that within thee lie,
Thou sweepest on through space—mistress of the sky.

Jean Wieringa.

A Song of Spring

Spring is here:

The brooks go murmuring by,
And flowers shake their sleepy heads,
While birds flit o'er the sky.

The Blue Bird and the Robin,
The Thrush and Veery too,
Are singing sweetest melodies,
Of Spring messages to you.

Let's every one be happy,
Not sit around and sigh,
For myriads of things are happening
And there's no time to cry.

Spring is here, spring is here
The happiest time of all the year!
Sing all the birds from top of tree,
So let's join in with merry glee.

Signa Waxwold

THE Hammond High School Association is a new and promising feature of the school. Only after months of discussion was the decision finally reached that our high school should give a trial to student government.

The plan was inaugurated by a campaign between the Purple and White tickets for the election of officers. Although the campaign expenses of each party were limited to five dollars, a very lively week, under the direction of the party managers, followed, in which stump speeches, parades and political rallies were the interest of the hour. The advisory rooms were divided into precincts for the election, which was under the management of the Civics classes.

The Hammond High School Association consists of the members of the faculty and the individual members of the student body. In addition to a President, Vice-President, and Recorder, it has also a capable Cabinet, House of Representatives, and a Senate.

The object of our Association is to establish and maintain a just government, of, by, and for the students. With this object in view, the Association attends to social and athletic activities, and regulates hall traffic. Although it has been in existence a comparatively short time, it has accomplished a great deal. It has sponsored "Hello Week," and has been valuable in dealing with the misdemeanors of students. With the co-operation of each student and member of the faculty, the Association is determined to succeed, and up to this time has met every expectation and desire.

The Dramatic Club

THE Dramatic Club this year, under direction of Miss Getzendanner, has not failed to keep up the good work accomplished in previous years.

Under auspices of the Dramatic Club, Miss Hortense Neilson, a professional reader, came to the High School and very interestingly read Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln." The Coffey-Miller players from Chicago gave the play, "Androcles and the Lion." This was also sponsored by the Dramatic Club.

The meetings were very entertaining, as various and sundry questions were debated, and readings and playlets were also given.

HI-Y CLUB

The Hi-Y Club of Hammond was organized two years ago out of a group of boys who were sent to an Older Boys' Conference at Marion. The membership of the club was set at twenty-five and has not been changed since.

The purpose of the organization is to create and maintain high standards of Christian character throughout the school and community. These high ideals make the club, with the "pick" of the student body for its members, one of the most worthy activities in the school.

Some of the novel social events which the club has introduced and which they hope to make annual affairs are, the Freshmen Boys' Party, Hello Week, and the Mother and Son Banquet.

The officers of the Hi-Y Club are:

President, ARTHUR BIEKER

Vice President, CHARLES BOMBERGER

Secretary and Treasurer, CARL RUDELIUS

THE FRIENDSHIP CLUB

The Friendship Club

THE Friendship Club, organized in 1922, has truly lived up to its name and purpose. Its purpose is to promote a spirit of friendliness among students of the Hammond High School, to interest the pupils of the seventh grade in continuing their work in high school, and to be of aid to the community by special services. All this the club has done, backing high school enterprises, taking care of and meeting incoming Freshmen, selling candy to aid the needy families of the community, and various other things.

The officers are: Edna Wright, president; Mary Jackson, vice-president; Helen Hopman, secretary; Mary Robbins, treasurer; and Marion Peterson, sergeant-at-arms. Miss Edith D. Gwinn has acted as sponsor. Under this able crew of officials the club has flourished and been successful in all undertakings.

FOOTBALL TEAM

FOOTBALL PERSONNEL

OLIVER NICHOLS (Capt.), end

Oliver "Ollie" Nichols, our captain and end, again distinguished himself as one of the best ends in Northern Indiana. He could tackle and tackle hard. He played a wonderful defensive game all year and received many passes for long gains. He was the best interference breaker that Coach Wilson had. He starred in every game. He is lost through graduation.

CLARENCE BALL, center

Clarence "Daddy" Ball, our lanky center, proved a great help in making the 1923 team what it was. He was a terror on defense, and made holes big enough for truck horses to go through on the offense. He was the best punter on the team and often gained ground by running with what were to be punts. He leaves us this year through graduation.

HAROLD HOFFMAN, half, end

Harold "Happy" Hoffman alternated at half and end until a mishap at Rensselaer put him out of the game for three weeks. He was an excellent receiver of passes and a good tackler. At half he was a human battering ram. He played his best game at Michigan City. This is his last year at Hammond High School.

CHARLES BUNTING, half

Charles "Chuck" Bunting was the lightest man on the squad. He played at half back and made up for his lack of weight by his speed and aggressiveness. He was a streak of greased lightning. He tore off long gains and played stellar football at all times. He was at his best in the Lowell game on a slippery field. Hammond will lose him, too, this year.

MALCOLM HOWATT, end

Malcolm "Pete" Howatt received his chance at end when Hoffman was injured. He filled in well and proved to be a great receiver of passes and a hard tackler. He played his best game at Frgebel. He also graduates this year.

JOHN CHEVIGNY, half

John "Flash" Chevigny had established a name of "Flash" for himself in '22. He lived up to and bettered that name this year, although suffering most of the season with a bruised knee. He distinguished himself in the Rensselaer game by running ninety-eight yards for a marker. Johnny graduates in June.

MAURICE JACKSON, guard

Maurice "Sheik" Jackson played football for the first time this year. He was green at first but soon learned all the tricks of the trade. At the end of the season he was one of the best linemen on the squad and had earned a regular berth. He will be back in 1924.

CARL KLEIHEGE, tackle

Carl "Klick" Kleihege, to prove that good football players run in the family, came out and lived up to the name made by his brother. In every game he was in every play. He played his best game at Blue Island. He will be back in '24 and has been elected captain of that team.

WHEELER McDOWELL, tackle

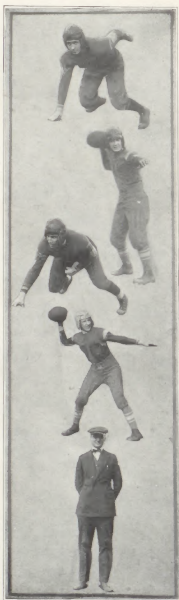

Wheeler "Whee" McDowell played tackle and played it well. He could tackle with dead accuracy and was instrumental in the fullbacks' long plunges by opening holes. He had weight and experience. He will leave us in June.

JOHN MAMALA, tackle, guard

John "Johnny" Mamala was not employed frequently but he showed talent when he was used. He played tackle or guard and formed a stone wall at both. This year's experience should prove a great help to him next season.

KENDALL NEWCOMB, end

Kendall Newcomb was a reliable end who should prove a star in future years. He had all the marks of a good football man and has two more years in which to develop them. He played end and although rather light was a strong defensive man. He played in the Lowell game, although he was a mystery to most of the spectators.

VICTOR NICHOLS, quarter, half

Victor "Hector" Nichols was the steadiest ground gainer we had. He alternated at quarter and half, and played both exceedingly well. He was the only Hammond back able to penetrate the Emerson line for gains. He was also a very good receiver of passes and led in the scoring this year. He graduates in June.

FRANK THORNTON, lineman

Frank Thornton played a line position and fit in any hole well. When a man was wanted to plug a gap that was left, he was quickly substituted and served well. He played an especially strong defensive game and played hard. He is a senior and will graduate in June.

ARTHUR SPOERNER, quarter

Arthur "Archie" Spoerner played quarter back in most of the games. He is a cool-headed field general and a demon tackler. He used his head at all times. He could pass well and was a good open field runner. He starred at Froebel and Emerson. He will be with us again next year.

F. E. WILSON, coach

F. E. Wilson came to Hammond two years ago from Illinois. In the two years that he has tutored purple athletes, he has proved himself a worthy coach. It is true that he hasn't turned out any championship aggregations; but he has earned the respect of his products, and the schooling that they gained from him will help them in further work in athletics. He stands for clean athletics and lots of it.

Football Review

HAMMOND AT BLUE ISLAND

In the opening game, Sept. 22, Hammond journeyed to Blue Island where they handed the Sucker State team a neat 20 to 0 trimming. Kleihege and Norton starred for the Purple and White. The game was comparatively slow, due to the frequent fumbles. It was both teams' first game.

VALPARAISO AT HAMMOND

On the next Saturday, Sept. 29, Hammond battled the strong Valparaiso eleven at Hammond. When the dust of the battle had settled, Hammond was in the lead 13 to 0. It was the second consecutive victory for Hammond.

HAMMOND AT RENSSLEAR

Hammond made a trip to Rensslear on Oct. 6 where the boys defeated the high school team of that city, 19 to 0. Rensslear was picked to win this game, but the smooth running eleven from Hammond sprung a surprise. It was a fairly fast game, in which "Flash" Chevigny put himself in the high school hall of fame by trotting ninety-eight yards for our second touchdown.

LOWELL AT HAMMOND

On Oct. 13 came Lowell and massacre. The field was a sea of mud and Hammond simply gave a green team lessons in this sport. The final score, 44 to 0, could have and would have been much larger on a dry field. Hammond played this game with five regulars missing from the line up. Norton and Bunting starred.

EAST CHICAGO AT HAMMOND

On the next week-end, Oct. 20, with the absence of Chevigny, Hoffman, Boyle, Keeler and Nelson, Hammond lost a heartbreaker to East Chicago. The Twin City crew simply played rings around the Purple and White. Hammond was picked to win, but lacked the punch that it had usually carried. It was the first defeat. Score—6 to 0.

EMERSON AT HAMMOND

Emerson came to Hammond on the next Saturday, Nov. 3, and with the aid of the breaks, defeated them 19 to 0. They received the scare of their lives, however, in doing so, as they expected to find an easy mark over here. The Purple and White had two remarkable chances to score. Coach Veenker used twenty-six men in this contest; Hammond, eleven men. V. Nichols starred for Hammond.

HAMMOND AT MICHIGAN CITY

Nov. 10, Hammond finished her 1923 season with a 6 to 6 tie, her opponent being Michigan City. This was the second deadlock. Hammond scored early in this game but afterwards was unable to penetrate the "Red and White" line. Hoffman starred in this game.

Basketball Review

Hammond opened her 1923 and '24 season on December 7 with a victory over Froebel High of Gary, 20 to 18. It was a fast game and Hammond's shots were truer. Spoerner was high point man.

The next game on December 14 was with Valpo and ended 27 to 26 in their favor. The game was played at Valpo and the fact that they were used to the floor meant a lot to them. It was a hard game to lose.

The next night, December 15, Hammond played Lowell here and lost another game by one point. This time it was 17 to 16 and throughout three quarters Hammond held a decided edge. Its defense cracked after that and another was marked up.

Still again the jinx was with the team and on December 19 it lost to East Chicago, 29 to 19. East Chicago was entirely too fast for Coach Wilson's crew and the outcome was never doubtful.

On December 22, after leading for three quarters, the team was forced to play with four men in the last few minutes and dropped a fast game to the Alumni, 29 to 28. Four players were disqualified in this game due to fouls and Hammond had but two subs.

A great upset occurred at Hammond's next game, January 4. They met Crown Point on Friday and although they were picked to lose by a wide margin, they ran wild and nosed out the County Seaters, 28 to 26. They were great in their victory.

Following the Crown Point game came Whiting and bitter defeat. Until the last four minutes, Hammond managed to stay ahead of the Oil City team; but then Jackson was removed with four fouls and soon Whiting had scored a fifteen point lead. The game ended 35 to 20, with Hammond on the shorter end of the score. This game was played January 5.

The real upset of the season came on January 11. Emerson, who had been rated as one of the best ten teams in Indiana, came to Hammond to lose to the purple and white, 17 to 15, in an overtime battle. Being the first time in five years that Hammond had triumphed over Emerson, much enthusiasm was stirred up. It was a great day for Hammond.

On the next night, January 12, with a great amount of confidence, the purple and white team lost on Michigan City's big floor and went down in a 19 to 13 defeat. Spoerner was forced out of this game with a bruised eye. The Hammond team was taken by surprise by the short pass attack that Michigan City administered.

Coach Wilson's Hopefuls started their second round, January 19, with a loss. The defeat can be attributed to the fact that they were unaccustomed to the Lowell Gym. Hammond outpassed their rivals, but what has that to do with winning if they can't outscore them? The final score was 21 to 14.

Hammond at Whiting, on February 2, meant another defeat. Again in the last period Hammond lost out. The final score was 19 to 14, and it was through Dwan's floor work and long shooting that Hammond was defeated.

Froebel beat Hammond by two points on the next Saturday, February 9. Hammond played bad basketball, often missing short shots that would have clinched the game. The final score was 19 to 17.

For the third time of the season, Hammond upset the dope badly on the next Friday night, February 15. Coach Smith's powerful East Chicago quintet came over and fell before Hammond's onslaught. It was a game long to be remembered by all spectators, filled with thrills and intense moments. The score was 25 to 18, and Hammond had chalked up her fourth win over the pack of the district.

The next game, February 22, didn't turn out so well, however, and Hammond lost its closing game to Crown Point, 27 to 20. Hammond's miserable showing reduced its stock for the tourney.

Hammond, however, reversed the form in the tourney and fought its way to the semi-finals where it was eliminated by Crown Point, 32 to 26. By beating Hebron, 29 to 8, on Friday and Boone Grove, 27 to 6, on Saturday, Coach Wilson's quintet entered the semi-finals for the first time.

Whiting won the tourney, which was held at Gary, on February 29 and March 1, after a string of hard and furiously contested victories. They conquered Valpo, East Chicago, Froebel, and Crown Point, which is no easy task.

BASKETBALL PERSONNEL

CLARENCE BALL, (Capt.) center

Clarence "Daddy" Ball had the ideal build for a basketball player, especially a center. His lankiness aided him greatly in tipping in shots and out-jumping his opponents. He was the main scorer of the season, but was charged with playing streaky basketball. At times he was wonderful and then he would lose this form and play a ragged game. He captained the team from the center position. He has played his last game for the Purple and White.

HAROLD HOFFMAN, forward

Harold "Happy" Hoffman was the scrappiest player on the team. He was always fighting and had an exceptionally good eye. He started most of the rallies for the team and played a strong defensive game. He is through playing basketball with Hammond.

THEODORE JASINSKI, guard

Theodore "Teddy" Jasinski played either guard or forward. His dribbling was good and he was an accurate passer. More fouls were committed on him, due to his dribbling ability, than on any other player on the squad. He is only a junior and will be back next year.

MAURICE JACKSON, guard

Maurice "Sheik" Jackson, although a newcomer to Hammond, has earned a warm spot in every fan's heart. His guarding was superb, and his ability to play the backboard was great. He had a weakness of committing fouls in the opening games, but he soon overcame this and proved to be a first-class backguard. His value was proved in the games where he was removed. He has another year to serve with the H. H. S. and should prove a wonder.

VICTOR NICHOLS, guard

Victor "Hector" Nichols, another old-timer, played his best games of basketball this season. In every game he was our best man and used his three years' experience to good advantage. His long shots were of the best and he was the best dribbler on the team. He played running guard where he could combine his shooting ability with his guarding prowess. He will be lost in June also.

ROBERT REES, guard

Robert "Bob" Rees didn't serve on the first squad until at the close of the season, but when he did he made up for the time he had lost. He played guard and played it well. He was another guard with a good eye. His diminutive stature handicapped him. He is a senior.

ARTHUR SPOERNER, forward

Arthur "Archie" Spoerner is another man who will serve in '24 and '25 with Hammond. He played forward this year and was the most consistent man of the lot. He had an uncanny eye and mixed with it a good guarding game. His services to Coach Wilson were great, but more is to be expected of him next year.

FRANK THORNTON, guard

Frank Thornton was guard of no mean ability. He didn't play often; but when he did, he proved that he had the stuff but lacked the experience. He was a strong defense player and fit into the passing combination well.

VERN GORDON

Vern Gordon was the power behind the megaphone. Wherever there was an ear-splitting series of "rahs," and a burst of enthusiasm, you could be sure Pewee was gyrating up and down before the grand-stand, megaphone in hand, leading the cheers.

F. E. WILSON

"Every boy in Hammond High School should be in some kind of competitive athletics, even if it is marbles," are the words of Coach F. E. Wilson, coach of all major sports for the past two years at Hammond High. Not only does he say those words but he strives to practice what he teaches, and works out schemes to get all boys out. He has proved an excellent coach. We hope he is with the purple longer.

THE BASKETBALL TEAM

TRACK prospects in 1923 were very bright from the first day of practice until the end of a most successful season. Coach F. E. Wilson had plenty of sturdy material to pick from and used good judgment in doing so. Hammond entered only one inter-school meet against Whiting at Hammond on the 29th of April, in which they were victorious, scoring 50 points to the Oil City's 30. First in the high jump by Nelson, in the 220 by Chevigny, hurdles by Chevigny were a few of the purple team's accomplishments in this meet.

The Press Club came out on top in a meet with the High School, April 18th, on the high school athletic field. The final score was 69 to 39 and was a walkaway for the printers as the score indicates. They scored in every event and found little opposition in Coach Wilson's hopes. Most of the stars representing the Press Club, however, served on the high school team in the other meets.

In the Twenty-Third Annual County Track Meet, held at Gleason Field in Gary, Hammond showed her wares by scoring 14 points for a third place against a brilliant field of stars. Emerson was high with 50 and Lowell second with 40 points. Norton and Nichols scored firsts for Hammond in the century and low hurdles, respectively. Seven schools were entered in this meet.

In the Northern Indiana Meet, held at the same field a week later, Hammond carried off second honors, a notch higher than they were able to get in the former meet. The weather almost put a stop to the meet, but as it was held the purple stars kicked up the mud for a total of 16 points to a 53 scored by Emerson, who won this meet also. Ol Nichols won the low hurdles again while Norton cinched a second in the century. Nichols also received a second in the high barriers and Norton in the pole vault. Chevigny grabbed a second in the 220.

The men that represented the Hammond High School on track in 1923 were Nelson, high jump; Norton, dashmen; Windmiller, middle distance runner; Walker, half miler; Achors, miler; V. Nichols, hurdler; O. Nichols, hurdler and shot putter; Chevigny, dash man; Lagree, miler; Wingard, dash man.

THE TRACK TEAM

Lake County Track Meet, 1924

THE best Hammond could capture in the Lake County Track and Field Meet of 1924 was a third place, repeating its success of 1923. The two Gary schools, Emerson and Froebel, were easily the class of the meet and placed first and second respectively. It was the second successive year that Emerson had won the event.

Besides Emerson's and Froebel's well-balanced teams, the other schools were possessed of only one or two good men with the rest just fair. This was the case with Hammond's team. Chevigny was Hammond's only hope. By scoring eleven of his team's fifteen points, he shared highest honor with Mohardt of Emerson for high points. Nelson and Ball placed second and third in the high jump and Chevigny added eleven points, with a first in the hundred and two seconds in the hurdles. These three stars were all that could find a place from the Hammond team, and Hammond had to be content with a third place, although a victory had been anticipated.

Summary:

Emerson	-	-	-	-	34	Whiting	-	-	-	-	10
Froebel	-	-	-	-	30	Crown Point	-	-	-	-	8
Hammond	-	-	-	-	15	Lowell	-	-	-	-	5

SWIMMING at the Hammond High School in 1923 exceeded expectations considerably. As this was the first year of participation in this sport, not much was expected; but the purple splashers upset the dope and earned the right to be called Lake County Swim Champs by winning the county meet at the high school pool on April 27. They snowed under their four competitors and walked off with the large end of a 34 to 19 score. The 19 points were scored by Emerson, who came in second, and the other schools scored as follows: Froebel, 7, and Crown Point, 1. Hammond scored five firsts and three seconds in seven events.

The purple tankmen in '23 were Florence, Collett, Halsey, Norton, Powell, Pepperdine and O. Nichols. They all showed signs of able tutorage and were at their best for this meet. Coach Nesbit trained the swimmers.

Hammond entered the County Meet in 1924 and hopes ran high. The competitors were Florence, Kolb, Noonham, Anuta, Haney, Wolf, Evans, Davidson, Collett, Parker, Dibblee. The meet which was held at Whiting, took place on April 5. Emerson was first, Hammond second, Froebel third and Whiting fourth.

The Senior Prophecy

"Rip's story was soon told for the whole twenty years had been to him but as one night"—Washington Irving

HE had wandered forth from the ruins of the old High School auditorium and now stood surveying, with ill-concealed wonder, his length of four feet beard. His rags hung from his skeleton-like figure in tatters and decay; but as he stood blinking owlishly in the bright sunlight, his countenance was suffused with joy as he perceived a familiar figure approaching.

"Hi, Dick!" he saluted. "Hi, Dick—Dick Winckler." But the person addressed, merely regarded him with cold disdain and a shrug of the shoulder. This rebuff amazed the tramp who stood hesitant but a moment, and then extending his arms imploringly, cried: "But you know me—why Dick—I'm your friend and classmate—Johnny Chevigny!"

"You're not Johnny Chevigny," contradicted a spry, little old man in the quickly gathering crowd. "I'm Cyrel Johnston and I knew Johnny well. He left the auditorium on Graduation Night, 1924, and disappeared completely. We've never heard a word from him since—he must be dead."

"But I am Johnny," insisted Chevigny, surveying the honest face of the spry, little gentleman with growing concern, and misgiving. "I don't know you," he added slowly. "Cyrel was younger than you. But—Dick—," he turned again to the boy.

The person addressed as Dick had remained speechless during this conversation, but now said, "I am Filbert Winckler and Dick is my father, the mayor. After he has spoken of his old friend Chevigny and wondered about his whereabouts. But I'm seventeen and Chevigny has been gone about twenty years."

Johnny groaned. "I fell asleep on Graduation Night back stage," he explained. "I had studied too hard for my finals, and was unable to keep awake during the lecture. I must have slept for twenty years!" He tottered unsteadily, swept aside his beard, and cried piteously. "But my friends—my classmates—Marguerite—where are they? Are they all gone?" A curious crowd had now gathered and one of them stepped up, a bustling, blue-coated officer of the law, billet in hand, and fluent of tongue.

"I warn you," he began pompously, "not to sully the name of our Mayor—the Honorable Richard Winckler, bless him. He has purified both the city water and the city politics. He has, as aldermen in his council, such honest men as Charles Bomberger, Warren See, and Frank Dutton who—I am sure—will grant you a shave and a haircut at the city's expense.

"Moreover," the spokesman continued, "if your strange tale is true, you can doubtless recognize me—Officer Arthur Bieker—who, I am sure, bear my age well, coming, as I do every morning, fresh from the Policemen's Beauty Shop."

At that moment a portly, somewhat over-dressed lady, with three children, stepped forth from the crowd and exclaimed, "Why, Johnny Chevigny, don't you remember me?"

"I'm sorry that I don't," he answered.

"You knew me as Dorothy See," she replied, "but Walter finally proposed, and now its Mrs. Hammond."

"But Marguerite," Chevigny cried, "where is Marguerite?"

"Ah!" Mrs. Hammond wiped her motherly eyes. "That is very sad; you know, when you failed to appear, graduation night, she was quite heart-broken. She grew like a shadow of her old sunny self, as time went on, and finally entered a convent."

"Well, she didn't marry, then," said Johnny, cheerfully.

"And where is all that old gang of mine—Happy Hoffman and Daddy Ball, and all the rest of them?"

One of the old residents who claimed to know some of those folks, came forward. "Happy Hoffman? Well, Happy is on the stage—he's playing a leading part in that great success—'Sancho Panza.' He is the front legs of Sancho's famous horse."

"Tell him who the hind legs are," prompted the crowd.

"Raymond Young," was the answer; and then he proceeded: "Then there's Richard Akers—he is now posing for the underwear ads. When he was in the B. V. D. section he was a rank failure but when he changed over to the Red Flannels he was a knockout."

At this time Dorren Davidson, wearing side-burns and a goatee, came up with his wife, Esther Howe. Esther's head was shaved—she said it was cooler and more sanitary than the old-fashioned bobs. With a woman's love of gossip, she began to retail the class news to Johnny. "Evelyn Humphrey, Dorothy Kays and Ruth Johnson are all movie queens," she said. "Ruth's last picture was 'Who Pays?' And Mary Christopher—ah, our Mary is the star bareback rider in Barnum and Bailey's Circus. Gertrude Matthies is a great pianist. Ruth McEwen has joined the House of David, and Louise Ramsay is an Oriental Seeress, known as Mme. Soakem. Caroline Kintzele? She is first—and last—chef at the Majestic Hotel and has published a famous work, 'Ptomaine Poisoning—by an Expert.'

This news from out of the past only whetted Johnny's curiosity. And bit by bit came these surprising facts from the crowd.

"Yes, Billy Kolb is a Strong Man in the Keith Circuit, and Ernest Lietzan and Wallace Berg are steeple-jacks. They had an argument one day as to who could climb highest and poor old Berg won. Requiscat in pace! Walter Brant went to Salt Lake City—now he's a Mormon. They do say that he has more wives than Solomon. Rose Chayken is playing in 'Abie's Irish Rose.' Of course, Wheeler McDowell and Ruth Stevens are married. And remember Johnny Wilhelm? He got to be City Judge. He gave 'Ol' Nichols twenty years for disturbing the peace. Ol drove his Lizzie till it was ready to fall apart. It looked like Ichabod's steed and sounded like the Jazzadores. Harry Pepperdine got $1,000 fine and six months on the penal farm for peeping through a fence to see Hammond wallop Emerson.

Another case of Jean Valjean. Edith MacDonald translated Vergil's Aeneid in one evening. The people became superstitious as to her powers, and Johnny gave her $100 and costs, for accomplishing the impossible. Esther Anuta and Virginia Silver, through their use of canned sunlight, have a ten-year contract with the Eskimos to heat the polar regions, and are becoming wealthy."

The whirring hum of an aeroplane overhead attracted the crowd's attention. "Daddy Ball is the pilot," someone volunteered and, as a slight woman jumped out of the plane in a parachute, added: "And that's Mary Moran, the greatest aerial daredevil in captivity." The story was resumed. "Marjorie Beebe is the champion roller skater of the United States, and Edward Burns is a retired millionaire bank president. Russell Wolf is now living at Logansport as a guest of the State. 'Tis said that all day long he sings, 'Who's Sorry Now?' Vernon Evans is an attendant there. He controls the patients through the hypnotic use of his eyes. Leo Oldfield, Robert Martin, Harold Brose and Kenneth Bielby, compose the famous Punk Quartette. They're a howling success. Milroy Miller is a Doctor—a horse doctor—and all he ever says is 'neigh, neigh.' Eugenia Davis married an Italian no ac-Count; and Le Roy and Lester Tweedle are a roaring success on the chautauqua singing 'Tweedle-de-dumb and Tweedle-tee-hee.' Francis Meyer, Jacob Grootsema and Floyd Hawk went West with a scheme for milking mountain goats, but were never heard of. Hallie Weber is in burlesque with the show, 'Hallie's Comet.' Then there was Raymond Malo and Henry Carnovitz. They had a four-legged duck and they boasted that it could swim the Atlantic. All three started out from the Florida coast, with the duck pulling the rowboat, and they were never heard from again. Marion Gruen is private secretary to Victor Easterday, the wonder inventor. Perhaps you recall James Melser? He is now a jockey. The Dickinson Sisters—Irene and Mary Ella—are also on the stage playing 'Topsy and Heava.' Edna Bohling rode her bicycle down the elevated tracks and was run down by a steam boat. These fast friends—Jean Cunningham and Jane Wilson are now lady barbers. Hiram McFarland has a grind organ and a monkey. And thereby hangs a tail. John Powell went west and was hanged by a posse, as a horse thief. In all justice to John, we must add, however, that the posse admitted later that the joke was on them—they got the wrong man. James Molenaar and Elvy Little are proprietors of a thriving business—selling sand in the Sahara. John Shanklin is in a cell, only eleven reasons for being there—his wives! Ida Goot, Marian Peterson, and Lucille Overman are Sennett Bathing Beauties. Three of your former classmates are with the Hoopy Dink Side Shows. Pearl Allen is operating a '3 shots at the nigger babies' stand. Edith Kaplan is Oo-la the Snake Charmer, and Bob Nelson is the world's champion chatterer. Irene Murphy has gone back to Ireland. David Linville is a traffic cop on the four corners. And Arnold Schultz is bootlegging Castoria to babies. Kenneth Mann's picture is in all the newspapers as the man who—after twenty years—has sifted the Tea Pot Dome Scandal to the bottom. Janesse Fetter's runs a matrimonial agency. Margaret Sharp is a missionary in China.

Harold Singer travels the Bijou Circuit with his 'Sextette from Lucia.' Besides himself he has Frank Thornton, Leonard Tarnogradski, William Ball, Marguerite Morton, and Catherine Griffith. Irving Schuzer went to the dogs—he's a butcher. Chester Harrison dropped his bass horn on his feet and died from the hoof and mouth disease. Dorothy Smith married George Smith and never changed her name. Peter McMinds is a famous pugilist. And Edna Wright went to Hawaii and runs around with a ukulele and a grass skirt. Doris Smith is hunting polar bears in Africa. Harriet Spohn travels around the country impersonating Aunt Jemima and her pancake flour. Mary Weeks went to Australia as a nurse and is now administering 'weak wines' to weak-legged kangaroos. Norrine Cohen is the wife of the President of the Irish Republic. Carleton Rudelius is a famous publisher—'Theosophy,' his latest publication. Forest Granger was sent to Congress—and Congress promptly sent him back. Do you see that broken-down wreck of an old man tottering in and out of school buildings on crutches? Well, that's Eddie Hobbs—he's still going to school. Kay Schoon is a chorus girl on Broadway, and Robert Rees is a dog catcher; Dale Gray went with a girl who kept a diary and an automatic. Like Napoleon—he's dead. Loretta and Verona Gledhill married the Smith Brothers and now live on cough drops. Viola Seitz and June Robinson run the 'Young Men's Taggery.' And Mildred Ebert swam the English Channel with her hands and feet tied.

"Lenore Brunn and Helen Hemingway have renounced the world and all its pleasures and now are Dianas of the Dunes, Pipes O' Pan, fur dress, 'n everything. And nine of your girl classmates are members of a famous organization—the Bloomer Girls' Baseball Team. Dorothy Beiriger is catcher, Edna McConnell is pitcher, Marie Earnhart is first, Frieda Hachnel is second, Lula Eldrige is third, Edith Rathburn is right field, Julia Mundo center, and Helen Wise is left field. Jeanette Meter is their water-toter and Wilbur Halaburt is their manager. Elinor West has published her ideas on love entitled 'Winning of the West.' And sweet Jean Wieringa is in the advertising business. She is dressed up like the Victor Dog and always hears her master's voice. Gertrude Van Weelden is the only woman blacksmith in the world. Genevieve Mead succeeded Beatrice Fairfax, and dispenses 'Advice to the Love-Lorn.' Mary Blythe attained greatness in collaboration with Harry Lauder. Miriam Collins and Bernice Bothwell died from broken hearts. One day they got brilliantine on their noses instead of bay rum. Kathleen McWilliams is now a deep-sea diver. Bernice Balsley, Margrette Cottrell, Violet Nichols and Marion Peters are old maids. They say they know when they're well off. And last but not least, Jessie Scherer tried to cross the Niagara in a tissue-paper barrel. She is the only woman who ever did it."

The story was ended. A history of good works it was, and a tale of accomplishment that surpassed the story of the Ten Thousand. And as the sprightly spring zephyrs scampered among the new flowers, down behind the dog pound, Chevigny, like his forbear, the last leaf on the tree, wearily wound his way, craving a much-needed breakfast.

Tom, Dick, and Harry, and Their Grandmothers

In Hades

Ninety long years of this life I have led,
Gone were my teeth, white the hairs of my head;
'Twas time I should die, so on my shade sped,
To Hades.

Off flew my ghost to far regions unknown.
In the shadowy darkness I stood all alone.
Was I to dwell here? I uttered a groan,
Black Hades!

"Tickets," a voice crackled right in my ear,
"Show up your money, five bones a year."
I jumped at the sound. Leo Oldfield down here
In Hades?

I knew the collector, from old ages dark,
On earth he'd found making his living a lark
By taking in tickets at the White Sox park.
Alas, Hades!

I paid my five bones and passed thru the gloom—
Perhaps after all 'twas not such a tomb,
Others from home might have here met their doom
In Hades.

Yes, there Gertrude Matthies all flutters and whirls,
And Marguerite Brennan, her hair puffs and curls,
Were vamping poor Caesar and Virgil! Oh, girls,
Right in Hades!

Nearby on Marj Beebe's "Beauty Shop" roof
Read a sign, "My cosmetics cure sunburn, forsooth,"
And Dorothy See stood in front as a proof.
Hot Hades!

The strains of a funeral dirge came to my ear,
To the shades, the most popular "blues" of the year—
So that famous musician, Ken Beilby, was here,
Poor Hades!

Louisa and Rosie, they're well known to you,
On earth were reporters, more or less true;
They wrote up society for the "Hella Baloo,"
For Hades!

"Hee he, tee he! I am down here, you bet!"
It was little Edne, in a smile her mouth set.
She had giggled thru life; she was giggling yet.
Sad Hades!

"Are you warm? Come this way! I am selling for love—
See my new ice machine. Don't push and don't shove."

'Twas Professor A. Bicker, once inventor above,
Now in Hades.

As we walked thru a field, who's that that we see?

The world's champion player, Ol Nichols! Dear me,
He's teaching old Hercules a full-back to be.
Yea, Hades.

"We've been teaching Paris and Helen tennis,
my dear,"
Oh! Jane Wilson and Vernon too, were down
here.
In the world while at tennis, they ne'er had a peer.

So in Hades.

"You're cheating!" "I'm not." Hello, here's a lark!
I thought so. H. Hoffman, the noted card shark,
And with him Dick Winkler, half hid in the dark!

Tough Hades.

M. Earnhart, J. Scherer, they passed in a row
With twenty-five black little imps all in tow.
Kindergarten teachers, above and below.
Dear Hades.

"Now I know my rights, and you can't gyp me!
I'll have the law on you, just you see!"
Russell Wolff orating, could that be he!
Abused Hades!

Do I see a sheik advance down the hall?
Oh, no, not a sheik for he is too tall
My heart knows no thrill. It's just Daddy Ball
Lost in Hades.

John Wilhelm and Wheeler McDowell, the bright,
With John Chevigny were debating the mercury's height,
They'd been politicians so they just had to fight
For Hades.

We went to where Pluto in black night did tower,
His right-hand advisor, John Shanklin, did lower.
Successful in law, he'd been given this power
Over Hades.

I looked thru the regions, checking my pace
I saw all my friends. A smile on my face,
After all, this is not such a bad place,
Oh, you Hades!

"Well, well," I exclaimed, and then shed a tear, (But 'twas for sheer joy) "I knew they'd be here,
It's where my friends all belong, that's quite clear."

Dear Hades!

BY THEIR WORDS YE SHALL KNOW THEM

John Chevnigny: "I'll have my lesson tomorrow."
Victor Nichols: "See you one day next Tuesday."
Helen Wise: "Oh Lawsy!"
Esther Anuta: "Oh, you Sambo!"
Clarence Ball: "Ya dumbell!"
Edna Bohling: "I know, but I just can't think of it."
Rose Chayken: "Holy Cow!"
Norine Cohen: "Is my powder on straight?"
Margrette Cottrell: "Drag in your pedal extremeties."
Marie Earnhart: "Suffering Sea Cooks!"
Lulah Eldridge: "Why ask me?"
Verona Gledhill: "Three guesses!"
Frieda Haehnel: "Yismum."
Malcolm Howatt: "For cry-in out loud."
Maurice Hutchins: "Do we have school tomorrow?"
Dan Leeney: "Charge it."
Robert Martin: "Got yer Latin?"
Wheeler McDowell: "Where's Ruth?"
Oliver Nichols: "Move, Lizzie, move."
Marian Peters: "Two bits on it."
Dorothy See: "Aw, monk."
Jean Wieringa: "I wasn't talking."

—o—

TO MY LOCKER

Little cubby hole six feet high—
When in thy vicinity I draw nigh,
Visions of boots and papers galore,
Peek from the crevices of thy door.
Long have I wandered, and much have
I seen
(To speak of thee thus, I know it is mean),
But nowhere, dear locker, o'er all the world's face,
Is stuffed so much rubbish in so small a space.

At studying Happy Hoffman's no star
There are others much brighter by far
A low grade, he don't mind it,
Where a blue card he finds it,
It's the teacher and class he does jar.

There was a big boy named McDowell,
At nights he was most apt to prow, l,
In lessons he'd flunk,
But he handed the bunk,
And when caught by the teachers he'd howl.

Have you ever heard tell of Dad Ball?
The one thing he did was grow tall.
He was an athlete
Who couldn't be beat
And he made the maidens all fall.

O! Nichols could sure play the game
He played once and got very lame.
An Emerson egg
He hurt his poor leg
Now don't you think that was a shame?

Jean Wieringa, she is a swell poet
She has talent and sure she can show it.
She's a cute little kid/
With dimples real big,
And let me tell u that she knows it.

"Jazzadores" are a musical gang,
Their jazz makes a hit with a bang.
You bet they are raggy,
Indeed, somewhat jaggy.
Their fame, through our corridors rang.

—o—

FAREWELL TO AN OLD FRIEND

Dear locks that from my head are severed!
I now feel like a chick unfeathered;
My head is light, my heart is stronger—
I now can lie in bed much longer,
For now I have no wool to comb
And the hair is short upon my dome.

TAKE THAT, WILL YOU?

Jimmie Sharp (just back from summer vacation): Hello, girls! Don't you remember me?

Margaret Brennan and Marjorie Beebe: Oh, yes. You're quite fresh in our minds.

—o—

OUCH!

Milliner: Try this hat, Miss.

Maxine Fleener: I don't like this shape, it hides too much of my face.

Milliner: But that kind looks best on you, Miss.

—o—

HOW ABOUT A MUMMY?

Jack Hendricks: Say, can you dig me up a girl for tonight?

Bob Lyons: Sure! But why not take a live one?

—o—

NOW, SCIENTIFICALLY SPEAKING

Bob Nelson: Could you get a shock by holding onto the receiver of a telephone?

Mr. Tew: It depends on who's talking.

—o—

WE UNDERSTAND

Mildred P. (in October, after an effort to grasp the class discussion): Is President Harding dead?

Mrs. Barnes: Why Mildred, you knew that Harding had died!

Mildred: No, I didn't. I don't live in Hammond, anyhow, I live in Hessville.

—o—

STINGY CENTRAL!

George Moore (coming out of the telephone booth): I put in a quarter. Mrs. Spohn, but central didn't return my change.

WONDERS NEVER CEASE

Freshman (in a burst of amateur oratory): All was confusion. The dead men were groaning on the battlefield.

—o—

ANOTHER MARVEL

Miss Hotchkiss: Where were the important land battle of the war of 1812 fought, Jane?

Jane Wilson (after deep thought): I think they were fought on the water.

—o—

DEDICATED TO OUR HERO

Our small "Daddy," full o' fun,
Hid one time in a three-inch gun.
The Fourth it was, and sad to say,
"Daddy" came down in the form of spray.

—o—

NOT BROKE, BUT BADLY BENT

Taxi Driver: $5.50 please.

Dick Winkler: You'll have to back up to fifty cents. That's all I have.

—o—

VANITY FAIR

A peach came walking down the street
She was more than passing fair,
A smile, a nod, a half-closed eye,
And the peach became a pair.

—o—

MODERN DRESS

Harry Feldman: Her dress consisted of a low neck, and a ribbon hanging down one side.

—o—

THE FOUNTAIN OF YOUTH

Ed Hobbs announced in history class that Nathan Hale was one of Mrs. Canaga's descendants. How old does that make Mrs. Canaga?
